ATTENDANCE

Due to the growing number of students and increased phone calls, we have implemented a phone "tree" system

When you call our main line, 419-3400, you will be prompted to the following:

* The Attendance line is for reporting an absence: illness, appointments or early dismissals. This can also be done in ParentVue.

We would prefer you to call the attendance line in the morning to request an early dismissal for your student. Early release passes are distributed during the first period of the day. If your student needs to be checked out last-minute (no later than 3:45), please press 7, which is the Main Office line.

For last-minute dismissals throughout the day, please be sure to check your students' schedule as it is difficult to find students when they are on their lunch break.

First in Your Family to Go to College? You're Not Alone, And Help Is Available

Thinking about going to college as the first in your family? That's a huge milestone and something to be proud of. Being a first-generation college student can feel exciting, but it may also come with questions and challenges. The good news? You're not alone, and there are many resources designed specifically to support students like you.

What Does "First-Gen" Mean?

If your parents or guardians didn't graduate from a four-year college, you're considered a first-generation college student. It doesn't mean you're on your own; in fact, many schools, organizations, and programs are here to help you succeed.

Support Is Closer Than You Think

From one-on-one advising and workshops to help with college applications, essays, and financial aid, there are people ready to walk this journey with you. Some programs even offer mentoring from current college students who were once in your shoes.

Why It Matters

First-gen students bring strength, determination, and fresh perspectives to college campuses. Colleges know this and many have support systems in place just for you.

Take the First Step

Not sure where to start? Fill out this quick form so we can connect you with the right support:

You don't have to have all the answers today. You just have to take the next step, and we'll be here to support you along the way.
